Lenten Sundays: There are many reminders during the Lenten Sunday Masses that we are observing a penitential season. The readings at the Sunday Masses bring to mind Lenten motifs and spur us on to fidelity in penance. Our Lenten Masses are less celebratory than the Masses of Ordinary Time; for example violet purple of the vestments and other appointments keep reminding us that we are in a penitential season, as well as does the simplicity of the environment and the lack of flowers.

This being said, the Sundays during Lent are not Lenten days at all. At a time when the symbolism of forty days was heightened, the beginning of Lent was pushed back to the Wednesday before the first Sunday of Lent so there would be forty fasting days (hence, the period of Lent is actually longer than forty days). The Sundays of Lent are still days on which we celebrate the Lord's resurrection. Especially on this Second Sunday of Lent when we hear about the transfiguration of Jesus are we reminded that dying always leads to rising to new Life. In our very liturgical celebrations we see the paschal mystery rhythm. Lent is a time to practice the discipline of dying to self, yet we still have one day a week on which we always celebrate the new Life promised by Jesus' resurrection. What might be ways we can truly celebrate new Life even on Lenten Sundays, without getting out of the spirit of Lent?

First Reading: Lent is a journey in faith through dark places toward the promised light. Abraham's faithful obedience took him to the brink of his son's death by his own hand as he prepared to sacrifice to God the very gift God had given to fulfil the promise of countless descendants. In Abraham's story, faith and obedience are rewarded by reprieve. But a surprise reprieve at the end did not lessen the cost of that long journey made in fear and grief to the place of sacrifice, knowing that knife and altar awaited.

Gospel: The stories of God speaking on the desert mountaintop to Moses from a cloud of fire and to Elijah in profound silence, commanding each of them to go to the people with the word of life, come together here to identify Jesus as the one in whom the fire dwells unseen and of whom the voice says, "This is my Son." We are charged to listen and to follow through the twisting desert paths before us to the final fulfillment of the promise of life made again and again to God's wandering people.
