About Liturgy

Change and liturgy: Change is generally a good thing – it indicates growth and desire for change is a witness that the liturgical assembly has grown deeper in their relationship with God and each other. Change is a fact of life and of liturgy! Change is good and necessary. But too much change too often in liturgy can actually work against fruitful liturgy.

After a change (especially something rather major), we must give ourselves time to "settle in" and make the change a natural part of the rhythm of our ritual celebrations. If we are always adjusting to something new during liturgy it is very difficult to internalise the fruits of liturgy. We must give ourselves time to "settle in," not in the sense of becoming complacent or resting easy (liturgy is always hard work) or getting sloppy, but in the sense of having the luxury of fine-tuning what changes we have introduced. As we grow in familiarity with our rituals we are free to enter more deeply into the liturgical mystery itself. While change is necessary and good for the rhythm of our liturgies, novelty and innovation (especially for their own sakes or just to hold people's interest) generally work against good liturgy. We must always remember that liturgy is given an essential ritual structure that has been tested through the centuries of tradition and this structure must be respected. It ensures that we are maximising liturgy's purpose to make present the paschal mystery and that we are celebrating with the whole church.

TODAY IS WORLD MISSION SUNDAY – THANK YOU

Thank you very much for your contribution to last week's World Mission Sunday collection. Your prayers and donations will help missionaries across the world share the Gospel and help heal the broken-hearted. Please pray for the work of Missio and all those working to offer the love of Jesus, that we may remain strong in our witness to Christ's love for all people. To continue supporting mission throughout the year please go to missio.org.uk or call 020 7821 9755.

All Soul's Day is unique on the liturgical calendar. Neither a solemnity nor a feast, this commemoration outranks all other feasts. Prayer for the dead reaches deep into our human history, and it has been our custom from the earliest days of the Church. The belief that our prayers can be of assistance to the dead is a treasured tenet of our Catholic faith. We profess it every time we recite the Nicene Creed. "I look forward to the resurrection of the dead / and the life of the world to come." During the past year, we celebrated funerals of: Sylvia Jenkins, Margaret Donnelly, Leo Donnelly, Joyce Shard, Kitty Larkin, Michael Conway and Evelyn Gabb. Rest in peace.

Lectionary for Mass

First Reading: The author of this text addresses the Lord as Creator of the whole universe. There is an immensity about the Creator that is described through a contrast with creation as a grain or a drop of dew. This contrast serves to instil awe at the greatness of God's love of all that is created and to offer praise of God who has placed "your imperishable spirit" in all things.

Responsorial Psalm 144 is a hymn of praise for the gracious and merciful, slow to anger and of great kindness. The psalmist prays that all the works of God give thanks; among these works would be the work of creation. The works of God are personified as "friends" and they in turn bless the Lord whose holiness is found in them.

Second Reading: Paul assures the brothers and sisters in Thessalonica that he constantly prays for them to be steadfast in their calling as disciples. Though Paul brought the word of Jesus Christ to them, he reminds them that their calling has come from God. It is the grace of God that will give them strength; they have no need to be "excited" in their gathering in the Lord's name.

Gospel: Luke recounts for us the delightful story of Jesus inviting himself to the home of Zacchaeus. It is one of the many teaching stories of Jesus that takes place in connection with a meal. The presence of Jesus in his house moves Zacchaeus to repent of his wrong doing and promise to change his life. The grumbling of the crowd leads Jesus to state his mission "to seek out and to save what was lost."
